

Sinclair Broadcasting is setting a dangerous precedent by airing an anti-Kerry documentary right before the election, preempting regular programming and broadcasting it commercial-free under the guise that it's "news." It's my understanding that the FCC can't do anything about this. This is the by-product of big media consolidation, and something does need to be done to prevent such abuse of our public airways. That Sinclair's stations are being forced to air political propaganda undermines each individual station's credibility. Are these stations really just tools for the conservative agenda? (or ANY private agenda) That is both irresponsible and morally reprehensible. Please take these words under consideration in the coming days! Thank you for your time.
